

Principles of Good Governance Summary

| Principles of Good Governance | Summary |
|---|--|
| Promote Peace and harmony | Promoting of a way of thinking that is not antagonistic, aggressive or violent. Thinking that seeks integration and harmony in the face of diversity and individual interests. We attend not just to what we do, but how we do it. |
| Practice and keep Voluntary agreements | Promote peaceful means to act in concert as a community. This precept applies to economic, social, and political policies, as well as to individual interactions |
| Promote Honesty | A requirement for voluntary agreements and promoting peace and harmony as a means to our ends. The basis for fighting corruption in politics or commerce. |
| Promote Community | Care for the collective whole community interests to build a Framework that is harmonious and inclusive. |
| Practice Respect for persons | Never treat others as objects or objectify others as a means to an end. Promote and protect natural liberty, natural equality, and natural life within the community. |
| Encourage Personification | Actively promote differentiations within the community to encourage additional sources of understanding and meaning, whether in science, art, or religion |
| Seek natural justice | Policies and actions that promote long term overall benefits for all members of the community. Natural justice achieves long term appropriateness by promoting persons and real recognition |
| Dissent for the sake of the public good | A public good is defined as that which promotes justice in the community. Ensure high quality thinking for policies or actions to prevent an individual or the whole community taking an unfair advantage. |
| Practice and promote Integrity | Governance bodies are responsible for adhering to the values that would nourish |

| Promote World unity | Unity means “many things taken together as one.” We are a united planet with diverse life forms, cultures, and ecologies. The more diverse are the parts of the co-development web, the greater is the expansion potential of the whole system. Governance bodies are responsible for promoting unity as part of how we increase harmony. |
| Practice and promote harmony and inclusiveness | If we are going to encourage diversity to help people to find new kinds of meaning we must also include them in harmonious ways to play an active part in the community. This a core responsibility of any governance body. |
| Invest in the global community | If all people are to have enough food and energy and comforts to have the time for spiritual growth and development, Governance bodies must invest in economic and social capital to expand and develop community needs |
| Practice and promote moral courage | Pertaining to the virtues of accountability and responsibility governance bodies must uphold all the criteria for quality thinking, and not suppress those that are inconvenient to a goal or agenda. |
| Practice and promote meaning and understanding throughout the community | Governance bodies must be competent and informed, and are obligated to participate in and keep up with current understandings. This is how governance bodies shape responsible knowledge generation and contain irresponsible applications of knowledge. |
| Practice and promote personal growth and fulfillment | Personal growth is achieved through the community. Governance bodies are responsible for ensuring the conditions where personal growth is possible for all citizens. They promote that we all take advantage of such opportunities. |
